SAVONA

These combination doors can be used in many different ways to achieve the desired look. They can be used on their own, or mixed with any of our other ranges.

 Natural Oak

Create a bold statement in the kitchen with the Natural Oak mixing with other colours. In this setting we are showing it with the Ultragloss Black Kitchen with inset handles. The massive contrast in colour and texture used in this kitchen create a sensational feeling. This looks equally as good with using normal handles.

 Stone Graphite

The Stone Graphite brings the raw industrial feel into the home. A neoteric contemporary finish, this sleek design will cater for those seeking the extra modern look. Here it is also shown with our matt grey doors.

 Driftwood

Bring a little outside indoors with the Driftwood combination door. Here it is shown being mixed with our matt Light Grey Verona door. This modern take on the two-tone trend brings depth and drama to the kitchen and indeed anywhere in the home.

Black gloss anywhere in the home immediately adds elegance, so it's no surprise that this Extreme Gloss black kitchen is one of our most sophisticated designs.

The kitchen doors are finished with a super glossy pear wood effect that adds a depth of luxury to this kitchen design. A brushed steel edge effect on the doors adds a contemporary feel to this kitchen design so you know it's bang on trend.

For the ultimate contemporary kitchen design, look no further than our Extreme Gloss Copper! The finish beautifully reflects light to make your kitchen feel bigger and brighter than ever before and add that extra wow factor to your home.

The setting shown displays how versatile the finish on these kitchen doors is an industrial chic decor complete with concrete floors and exposed beams, and yet this kitchen would still look right at home in a room with tiles and simple cream coloured walls.
